the perfect grid
was a performance.

i've always hated performing - feeling like i had to prove something with a perfectly curated grid.

but it was a good practice. it taught me to see how my work fits together - the themes that surmise.

i'm taking that with me. leaving the rest.

moving everything back home.

i've always dreamed of bringing all my data to my own homepage - and joining the "indie web."

a place, not a platform. no algorithm. no ads. no harvest.

the site is the gallery. the site is the art. ✨

i miss the old internet.

i want to go back to a time when webpages weren't - weren't surveillance.

weren't shaped like everyone else's.

i miss handmade pages. tiled backgrounds.

guestbooks. weird little spaces built by one person.

the next step
of my evolution.

it's just time.

art only grows when the container changes. this one stopped fitting.

→ new shape.

→ new rhythm.

→ ✨ new home.

thank you for being here for the last one. ♡
